Many men
Who frequently wear
A Uniform,
Especially Army Officers,
Are apt to refer
To ordinary clothes
As civilian clothes,
Which reminds us
Of a man who
Came back from war
And he was telling
About his adventures
And he wound up with:
"It sure feels good to be
"In civilian clothes again."
Whereupon
Someone piped up—
"If you mean those clothes
"You've got a nerve
"To call them civilian."
It's no doubt true
That many men in uniform
For the first time,
Had REAL Clothes
That REALLY fitted,
Forced upon them.

You can't expect clothes
Chosen hit or miss,
To make a hit
With any Miss.
Choosing right clothes
Is almost an art,
And if you're a student,
All well and good;
The many students
We've seen
Were not very good
At choosing good clothes.
It's best to put your faith
In a store that sells
Clothes built by experts,
Who make it their business
To study the question
In a business-like way.
Of course we haven't
All the good clothes
There are in the world;
But there's one thing sure,
We have no use for Clothes that do not
Measure up to a
Very high standard
Of Quality and Style.
WE THANK YOU.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE BY DR. H. M. AMI

"Prehistoric Man in Recent Discoveries"
CANADIAN CLUB
Dr. Ami to Donate Valuable Relics to McGill

That the subject of Anthropology is awakening great interest in the minds of students of McGill was evident yesterday afternoon when a large crowd gathered at the R.V.C. Convention Hall to listen to Dr. Ami's lecture on "Prehistoric Man in Recent Discoveries." The lecture was illustrated with lantern slides of places where important discoveries have been made, and some of the relics of pre-historic times that had been found.

Dr. Ami has for fifteen years been in charge of the ethnological and archaeological work at Ottawa, and has won a world-wide reputation as an authority upon these subjects. The fact that Dr. Ami was born near Montreal and graduated from McGill University made his visit doubly interesting.

During the course of his lecture Dr. Ami mentioned that he was arranging for the donation of a set of relics from the excavations at Ipswich to the McGill museum. Some of the relics are among the oldest remains of man's work that have been found, and will prove a valuable addition to McGill's collection.

In opening his address Dr. Ami gave a brief sketch of the extent of knowledge now existing concerning the habitations, customs and manners of pre-historic man. Pre-history, about which comparatively little is known, lasted until seven thousand years ago. The Stone Age can be divided into three periods, the Paleolithic, the Neolithic, and the Bronze Age, which are being constantly found. Dr. Ami exhibited a number of stone implements collected by himself during the past summer, among them curiously shaped flints, stone fist-hammers, and various deadly looking weapons. In the space of a few months, he said, he had collected hundreds of these, many of them being found from eighteen to twenty-five feet below the surface of the soil.

Among the first slide which he showed were views of pre-historic caves in the sides of the mountains in the region of Mentone, near the border line between France and Italy. In these caves a great many valuable remains have been discovered. The skeleton

FINANCIERS WILL GATHER TO-MORROW

Big Things to be Discussed at Commercial Society

After a somewhat lengthy period of inactivity, the Commercial Society will again blossom forth to-morrow evening when the first meeting of the winter term will be held in the Union, starting at 8:30 sharp.

It is important that every member shall be on hand at the meeting, as considerable business of interest to all years will be discussed.

It was expected that Mr. J. L. McCullough would give an address on Insurance, but as he is unable to be present the Committee have decided to hold a business meeting only.

Long other things to be dealt with is the drawing up of a suitable programme for the rest of the year. Such attractive subjects have been suggested as addresses on Advertising, Salesmanship, Banking, Exporting and Importing, the Textile Industry and Insurance. The annual dinner of the Society will be discussed also.

Those doubtful of attending the meeting are especially asked to postpone other engagements, and grace the occasion with their presence. The Commercial Society is famous for its peppy and well attended meetings and it is hoped that this will be no exception. To make things more attractive a huge supply of smokes has been laid in and will be issued generously to the gathering.

The usual 'cats' will finish up the meeting.

Mr. Jones, coming home from one of his club festivals in a rather weak condition, met the colored maid in the hall and mistook her for his wife.

"Shay, Mary, I tol' you not to go to the house today. You've shoo-looked spoiled your complexion!"

PIERRE PUTS IT OVER WITH A VENGEANCE

Turkey Dinner Augments Cafeteria Clientele

400 SEEK FOOD

Largest Crowd in History of Cafeteria, Says Manager

The Daily's exuberant enthusiasm of yesterday has been justified, and no also has Pierre's publicity man-gor.

Last evening between the hours of 6 and 7 the Cafeteria was the scene of a near riot and it is rumored that several of the patrons so far forgot their party behavior as to push in the "bread-line." When the mass of struggling humanity was finally disentangled 160 men, no more, no less, were found licking the platter clean. These contented few had to be afforded police protection from the hungry mob without and they caused the rancor of the disappointed ones to break forth anew by the contented and complacent expressions with which they adorned their visages.

There was but one thing wrong with the Turkey Dinner—There was not enough. So from the rioters, but at least, there can't complain of

Mc GILL AT THE EMPIRE EXHIBITION

Exhibit is of Automatic Dellinescope Type
150 SLIDES

Descriptive of All University Buildings, Facilities and Equipment

McGill University, as one of the leading institutions of higher learning in this Dominion, will occupy a prominent place in the booth at the British Empire Exhibition depicting the educational resources of Canada. This exhibition will be held during the summer months in England at Wembley.

The object of the exhibit is not so much to advertise McGill in competition with the other Canadian colleges, but to represent her as one of the great educational resources of Canada. For this reason the various universities of Canada are co-operating and have a month at the Exhibition of Empire resources.

The McGill exhibit will be of the automatic dellinescope type. The technical arrangements for the carrying out of this plan will be carried out by a Montreal firm. The method referred to above had to be reported to on account of the limited space. By this particular way, pictures like a series of lantern slides will be projected from a box-like opening. By means of a special process these pictures are very clearly visible in daylight. The pictures will change after an interval of thirty seconds and by this means there will be a very adequate and complete showing of all university buildings, equipment facilities and activities. The apparatus is entirely automatic and will give a continued and progressive showing of all photographs.

This novel form of exhibit will doubtless prove of very great interest to all those attending. Over one hundred and fifty slides are in course of preparation. There are pictures of the facades of all university buildings, and the interiors of many such as the Dalhousie Library, University Library, and the McCord Museum. Also, representations of college athletics, student activities, and organizations of all kinds will receive due consideration.

On each slide of the buildings there will be a few descriptive remarks and each will be followed by another slide giving the text and facts concerning

SERVICE IN UNION SUNDAY MORNING

Robert Wilder to Speak on "Christian Students and World Problems"

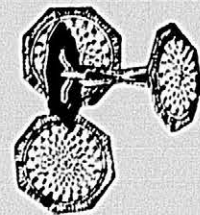

Next Sunday morning at eleven o'clock the professors and students of the University are to meet together once again at a University Church Service. The service will be held in the Union and the speaker will be Mr. Robert P. Wilder, whose subject will be "The Christian Student and World Problems".

University Church Services should be among the great events of the college year and in the matter of speakers, those who arrange the services are doing the utmost to make them memorable events. A large proportion of the student body heard Mr. Ward's address at the previous University service and the comment was practically unanimous that he was "a real man with a real message for students", and those who have had the privilege of listening to Mr. Wilder say that he has, for the student world, an equally fascinating message and that he has a power of delivery quite adequate for his all-important subject.

Mr. Wilder will be of special interest to the students as founder of the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions in North America; he has been a missionary in India and a member of the general committee of the "World's Student Christian Federation" and he has now returned to America as an associate with Dr. Mott. Mr. Wilder is also senior secretary of Religious Education of the Y. M. C. A.

The service is to be held on the top floor of the Union the form of service being somewhat similar to that of previous University Services. It is expected that it will be conducted by Dr. Gifford of the Wesleyan College and that the music will be led by the student orchestra.

Unwritten Laws

As rigid as the laws of the Medes and Persians is that unwritten law of good taste which encompasses a man in his selection of personal jewellery.

His every query as to "what is correct"—be it rings, cuff links, scarf pins or studs—can be best answered at Mappin & Webb's.

In short, it's just as safe for a man to shop for jewellery at Mappin & Webb's, when it is a question of good taste, as it is for the sound, solid quality he prefers.

MONTREAL, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1924.

DO SOME STOOP SO LOW?

The mid-term examinations are over but there is an unpleasant odour pervading the campus atmosphere, an odour which is sickly and nauseating, and one which must be cleared away quickly if McGill's undergraduate body is to keep a clean bill of moral health. The source of this pollution lies in the fact that there are some students at present in this university, who are so morally crooked that they are willing to use extremely shady methods to pass their examinations. Yes, you may well start with surprise and you, the unsophisticated and blissfully ignorant, may shake your head in disbelief, but the spot is there and during the past few days it has become painfully black on a white background.

The fact that undergraduates cheat their way through for a degree is something that is not new, either in this college or in others. But we are sometimes apt to forget this fact and by mentally going to sleep, unconsciously condone corruption in our midst. And there are those who sleep with one eye open. However, the jar has been felt and there are some at least who are awake to the facts and are extremely disgusted. One prominent undergraduate, after finishing a recent test, stated that he had seen several examples of men cribbing, not merely for the sake of passing, but for the purpose of obtaining honours. Other rumours have emanated from still different sources and from casual inquiries we have sufficient evidence to firmly believe the truth of the accusations. And believing them we would hasten to propose a remedy, which if applied would cleanse the present situation. The action need not come from the authorities, for the system is not at fault; nor need it come from the general public. This is the business of the student body and as long as we tolerate the existence of classroom dishonesty, it will exist in greater proportions than it would otherwise. If we stamp on the evil and stamp on it with force, some of the offenders will be cured or get out; and those, after all, are the alternatives.

But though we know that there are students who are not strictly honest, we can thank heaven that their numbers are few, very few. But the blemish is on the scutcheon and it is up to us, as undergraduates, to try and erase it, so that not the slightest indication of this disfigurement will remain. Our attempt may be futile but at least we can try.

CONDENSED COMMENT

The turkey dinner at the Union was a success—as a matter of fact too great a success. The poor bird was attacked by so great a number and with such rapidity that it totally disappeared all too soon and many patrons were disappointed. But we can sympathise with the Union House Committee, who were in charge of the special dinner, for even though they had planned for an exceptionally large number, the demand was unprecedented in the history of the cafeteria. The idea of an occasional turkey dinner is good, especially as it should increase the regular patronage, and we hope that another feature meal will be served within the near future. An indication of popularity has been given and the Committee will be in a position to handle the extra crowd, to the satisfaction of all.

To-night our massed rosters will give their united effort to the Senior Hockeyists but without the traditional and much-needed support of the band. Lack of collegiate pride and spirit has, and we hope only temporarily, placed our organized musicians in the ranks of the has-beens. Only a scant half-dozen faithful bandmen remembered their duty and value to the team and university, and turned out to practise. These men are to be lauded for their good intentions, but to the unloyal absentees at practices the whole student body will direct praise on the basis of value received for co-operation and support.

For the second time this session the intercollegiate hockey squad will be seen in action in the local arena. Notwithstanding a weakened defence due to unfortunate accidents, the results of the games played to date foreshadow a victory for the Red and White. Essential for the unconquerable spirit in the team is the hearty support of every undergraduate. It is the bounden duty of every student to be present at the game to-night and to prove to their representatives on the ice that they are loyally backing the team.

the faculty and courses condensed from the respective calendars. Each phase prepared by the faculty or department concerned on the plan of a condensed tour through the university. There will be in addition copies of the calendars of the various faculties, copies of the Annual and of the various other publications.

The entire exhibit will probably be completed by the end of February and will be shown next fall following the British Empire Exhibition.

COME INTO THE GARDEN, MAUDE

(With apologies to Tennyson)

Come into the garden, Maude,
For it is full of weeds,
And everything, believe me, Maude,
Your prompt attention needs.

Come into the garden, Maude,
There's perfume in the air,
For garlic shoots and onions
And cabbages are there.

Come into the garden, Maude,
The black bat, Night, has flown,
I'm waiting in the garden, Maude,
And hate to work alone.

SKI TRIALS TO BE HELD ON SATURDAY

Promising Material for This Year's Team

AT STADIUM

Team to Compete With Dartmouth Early in February

The executive of the Ski and Snowshoe Club met Monday afternoon in the Union, and arrangements for coming trials were arrived at.

An invitation was read from the Dartmouth Outing Club to compete in their Annual Winter Carnival on Feb. 7, 8 and 9th, and because of the nearness of the date it was found expedient to hold the university tests in the very near future.

On Saturday morning of this week, Jan. 26th, the Ski and Snowshoe dashes will be held at 12 o'clock, on the field at the Stadium. The following have signified their intention of competing, but other entries are also invited, post entries up to the time of the race being received.—Snowshoe Dash:—Wally Mitchell, Terry Mitchell, Don Walsh, Bruce Anderson, Geo. Grimson, Hurd, Ski Dash:—Phil Walte, Tom Brown, Art. Gravel, Bob Wade, Lutherford, P. Costigan, Kerr, Herb Murphy, R. Lehan, Elliot, Andy Starke. On Sat. afternoon the Jump Tests will be held on the Cote des Neiges Jump in conjunction with the Montreal Ski Club trials on that day. Members of the McGill Ski Club who are not members of the M. S. C. are expected to call H. Smith before Saturday at Westmount 1811. Those competing in the jumps to date are:—Lehan, Gravel, Walte, Knowlton, Sherrard, Leslie, Smith, Murphy, Walsh.

The efficiency trials will be held at 11 a.m. on the 27th, and will take place on the Cross Roads Hill on Mount Royal with Messrs Barck and Whittall as judges. Those entering are:—Lehan, Sherrard, Gravel, Oz, Leslie, Phil Walte, D. Anderson. On Sat. Feb. 2nd the McGill Club will again run its Ski Cross Country Race with that of the M. S. C. This will be possibly run from the Club House at Park Slide. The McGill entries to date are:—Tom Brown, Wade, Gravel, Lorne Goodall, Lehan, Elliot. The Snowshoe Cross-Country Race will be run from the Stadium on the morning of Feb. 3rd at 11 a.m. The entries are:—Dure, Crow, Geo. Grimson, Tom Barnes, Stone, Terry Mitchell, D. Anderson.

The opening event in the Dartmouth Carnival takes place on Thursday.

THE MEANING AND VALUE OF TOC. H.

Mr. Crawley to Introduce Discussion on the Subject

ToC. H. is an after war effort to produce an army of young men of all classes, to fill the vacancies caused by the losses of the War. One of its aims is to transmit to future generations the fellowship and comradeship found on active service. It is a "democracy of worshipful service", a fellowship of men of all classes and a fellowship of the lasting kind where in all the class distinctions are lost because all men are out for one great purpose of widening the interest in the lives and needs of their fellows. It is not an ex-service men's organization though it was begun by them. It was born as all good things are in sacrifice.

ToC. H. was the name given by the men who held that costly parcel of ground known as the Ypres Salient, to a house which stood sheer up from the street, but wherein they found refreshment for their three-fold nature, and wherein was a comradeship which typified the best traditions of the British race. General and Tommy, Private and Sergeant-Major met there as men and talked over things as they would have them be. ToC. H. was once a nick name, now it is a proud title for a great fun-loving society of brethren who are out to break down class antagonisms conquer hate and assist in building a living active memorial to the noblest men of our race.

To talk over the subject a meeting is planned for Thursday at 5 p.m., in Strathcona Hall. The subject will be introduced by Mr. Crawley, who is padre of the first overseas chapter of ToC. H. recently founded in Winnipeg.

THE DILETTANTE

Recent Books

ANTIC HAY BY ALDOUS HUXLEY

In an age when moral standards are as lofty and just about as beautiful to contemplate as a New York skyscraper it is most refreshing to read a book by a really good, sound decadent. And if anyone would have my throat torn out for a profligate and a libertine I refer him to the most recent number of the official Canadian organ of the Student Christian Association. In an article entitled "The Poisonous Ideal" we are informed that "ideals have got to go, there is no doubt about that. The health and sanity of the race will be jeopardized if we continue to supply our children with standards to live up to, and subtly enforce them with the powers of religion and convention, powers much less humane than the whipping-post and the torture-chamber."

Mr. Aldous Huxley is really one of the most promising of the young English decadents. I am told that to really appreciate his work one must have seen the recent caricature of him from the acid pen of Mr. Max Beerbohm. The young author is there set forth as being approximately nine feet in height with a cigarette of proportionate length dangling negligently from one corner of his mouth. The general effect must be very impressive. There is not a great deal in "Antic Hay," it is merely excruciatingly clever. This is the point where the moralists will turn up their noses, just as there are some people who think that a good Graye or a good Rochester is merely "smelly." But then a taste in literature like a taste in cheese requires a certain amount of elementary cultivation, so we can leave the moralists out of account. I imagine there is a certain amount of autobiographical matter in the book. There is Mr. Gumbrell Jr. B. A. Oxon., who becomes fed up with school-teaching and invents Gumbrell's pneumatic small-clothes for the relief of those who lead a sedentary existence. There is also a certain Mr. Mercapian with an amusing taste for Crebillon fils, who writes "middle-articles" for weekly papers; just the sort of enlightened idiot who would contribute to "The Dilettante." In both of these, I think, there is more than a little of the author himself.

Mr. Huxley has done better work, notably in "Crome Yellow," and in some of his short stories, such as "Kums at Luncheon," but he has not yet turned out anything more amusing than this latest volume. The characters just amble about, and talk, and get into little adventures and out of them again. What do any of us really do more than that? The only trouble is I am afraid, we don't talk half as brilliantly as Aldous Huxley's characters do.

LADY INTO FOX By David Garnett

David Garnett's "Lady into Fox" for the last six months has been the subject of much conversation in fastidious literary circles. Here we have a little book of something less than one hundred pages telling in a wonderfully simple manner an exquisite fairy tale. Unlike most fairy stories, however, it is not designed for children. The attractiveness of "Lady into Fox" consists in its ingenuity of plot, its beauty of language, and its vividness of imagery. It is fantasy without extravagance. Its restraint and unbroken gravity are marvellous.

The scene of our story is an aristocratic estate in England, and a characteristic feature is the total isolation of the characters and the events from the rest of the world. This detachment is conducive to the distinctive air of unembellished mystery. The principal dramatic personae are Mr. and Mrs. Tebrick, but newly married, and an old serving-woman. On page five this statement is made, after the man and his lady have been discovered in a copse on a little hill: "Where his wife had been the moment before was a small fox, of a very bright red. This is the titular event of the narrative, being an announcement of the heroine's metamorphosis into a vixen; here the action really begins. This is the only miracle in the story; the rest is plausible, specious, and entirely logical. At first the lady-fox is a perfect lady. She desires clothing, she listens to sweet music, she eats with as much grace as she is physically capable of, and to all appearances she thinks as a human being. But soon the tragedy of the whole episode becomes obvious to the reader, although the wretched Mr. Tebrick is never thoroughly disillusioned. The spirit that is, the inner essence, of Mrs. Tebrick commences to assume as truly a vulpine character as her outward bodily form. It is with this inner transformation and the young husband's efforts to combat it that the account chiefly concerns itself. She fell into the habit of playing with the ducks and driving them into the pond; then one day she killed a rabbit bit that was in the house, scattered the walls with its blood, and ate its bones and all, and the most unlady-like growling finally she ran away. After months of searching Mr. Tebrick found her—surrounded with a litter of five cubs, little smutty-nosed fox-cubs. After that he came daily to visit the puppies, to play with them and teach them tricks, and one day he encountered the old Reynard, father of the little ones. In the late autumn, in the thick of the hunting season, Mrs. Tebrick was killed by hounds, which had chased her into the garden of her old home. At this point she was killed. Thus closes a little story of infinite grace and charm.

My favorable criticism of "Lady into Fox" has been in the face of the redoubtable Middleton Murry, editor of the "Adelphi," who has formally condemned the work in question, as being senseless and unworthy of any intelligent attention. I am encouraged in my wilful persistence, however, by the fact that the trustees of the Hawththorne Literary Prize saw fit to grant their annual award to David Garnett for his "Lady into Fox."

The Theatre

"TATTERLEY" AND VICTORIAN GHOSTS.

Seeing "Tatterley" is very like going up into an attic and rummaging through an old trunk left by one's maternal grandmother. You lift the cover gently, and the rusty hinges squeak at you in a plaintive sort of way. Inside neatly folded away is a mass of dear, dead, hideous things, so beloved of the mid-Victorian bourgeoisie: lace, shapeless what-nots, a sampler with the letters of the alphabet and "The Lord is my Shepherd" embroidered in angular woolly letters. From a limp purple thing near the bottom rises up a faint odour of lavender and thyme and mignonette, grown and gathered in some quiet sunny garden years ago. You have just for a moment a sweet, very vision of crinolines, an ornate clock, Sunday prayers, faded immortelles under a bell-shaped glass bowl, antimacassars and a righteous generation. The next minute you don't know whether to blubber like a calf or laugh like a maniac at the whole business.

I believe the play was written as late as the last decade of the century, but it is like little Joseph in that respect, born much too late after all his elder brothers had grown up into respectable citizens. What a tough fight King Arthur Pinero and St. George Bernard Shaw must have had to slay this sentimental dragon and drag its carcass off the stage. There is Caleb Fry, a hard man. He disinherits his artist nephew, just like that. And so he ought if the young idiot will insist on painting landscapes with 1820 colour theories long before the days of Corot—Mr. Stage Manager, attention please. Then Caleb's servant, Tatterley, dies, and the old chap falls a victim to senile decay. He reforms—this is your true Victorian denouement—dresses up in Tatterley's clothes, and spends the rest of his days righting the great wrong and saying "God bless yer." Useless to follow through to the cliché ending. The handsome villain is, of course, foiled, when he attempts to persuade the unsubstantial heroine to fly with him to Paris, or some such wicked, wicked place. And all ends in happiness and sobe of beamish joy.

Bransby Williams, of course, had a splendid chance to do some of his very best character-acting with the dual role, and he took it. His Caleb Fry was particularly impressive, and I wish he hadn't changed into Tatterley quite so soon. Some of the members of his company, notably Mr. Charles Leighton, show signs of not having studied in vain under one of the most notable of masters. It was because of Bransby Williams and his company that I had to fall foul of the play. It hardly gives him the opportunities he deserves. Even "Vidocq," impossible as it is, gives him a much better chance of displaying his really extraordinary powers of mimicry.

On Thursday afternoon there will be another performance of the one man show. It is quite the best thing Bransby Williams does, and Montrealers do not often have the good fortune of seeing anything so supremely well done.

Only the best of the dead past is worthy of resurrection, and I can think of at least two things that might just as well be left to slumber on in their graves through all eternity: Tutankhamen is one and "Tatterley" is the other.

THE TINY THEATRE MOVEMENT.

Nothing the Montreal Community Players do can ever surprise me now. They have struggled in over-heated not very successfully from a financial point of view, with professional companies at his Majesty's; this year they are "at home" at last in a little doll's house of a thing in the old Khaki Club; next year, for all I know, they may move down and try their luck in the New York Hippodrome. What really matters is that they have never lacked courage, and that for the last four or five years in the face of the most adverse circumstances they have given a select Montreal public a chance of seeing some at least of the newer things that are most worth while.

It is "high-brow stuff", of course. I see by this morning's paper that Pinero says he has no use for that sort of thing. Well, Pinero must be coming on in years now, and the fact remains that there have been about a hundred people a night for the last five nights, who have had some sort of use for what the Community Players have been able to offer them.

For the most part the old-timers are still carrying on. There are two or three additions to the ranks, notably in the person of Mr. Stanley Saunders, whose Captain Keeney in Eugene O'Neill's "Ile" was a splendid piece of work. The O'Neill play was, of course, quite the best of the three, and I wonder if everybody realizes just how hard it is to act a tragic sketch on a little bit of a stage at one end of a room, where the back row of the audience is as close to the stage as the front row would be in an ordinary theatre.

Both the comedies were bright, though the first one was just a little bit too flimsy, and one of the actors gave rather a drawing-room charade touch by laughing at the scenery instead of with it. The whole performance was really delightful though from beginning to end, and the only really regrettable feature was that there was not room for more people to be present.

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS Moral Maxims for the Young of Both Sexes

Be kind to animals, my child:
Don't make the gentle ringworm wild.
Little children shouldn't tease
Little Fido's littler fleas.
When you see the industrious ant
Too heavily burdened toll and pant
Ease him of his irksome load.
Lift it for him down the road.
Don't bite the little worm in half
That in your lettuce hides—just laugh.
Pointedly stroke his silky head,
And eat some other things instead.
Speak not harshly of the moth
Though she dines on fur and cloth.
Remember everyone must eat,
—Why not offer her a treat?—
Cut a large sized chunk of fur
From your coat and give it to her,
Such unselfishness as this
Will fill your Mother's heart with bliss.
And lastly, pray do not encroach
With heavy tread upon the roach.
The insect's justified remains
Afflict the rugs with horrid stains.
Be gentle to these fellow creatures,
And ever learn to love your teachers.

of a giant seven feet eight inches tall, and that of an elephant which had been roasted and eaten are among the most interesting. The skulls found here are of the Cromagnon type.

The interiors of several of these caves were then shown in detail, revealing the different layers of rock containing remains of the various ages. In these caves interesting relics can still be picked up. Two of the most famous are the "Caverne des Enfants" and the "Caverne du Prince," which have contributed valuable additions to anthropological lore. Most of the relics from these caves have been transferred to the Museum of Anthropology at Monaco.

A series of very interesting slides showed pictures of some of the rock shelters which were used a great deal by the ancients, and in which a wealth of valuable material has been unearthed. These rock shelters were formed either naturally by overhanging rocks, or else by artificial methods. To-day many of the peasants build their cottages right up against the same cliffs, following the precedent of their prehistoric ancestors. In this way they live in the very midst of the remains of the people of the stone ages. In some of the houses the fowl are scratching up pieces of flint which in the eyes of the archaeologist are priceless.

In some of the caves there are evidences of considerable artistic ability on the part of the ancients. In one cave in particular a beautiful fish was

IMPERIALISM AND CANADIAN IMMIGRATION

Two Outstanding Problems Discussed by Historical Club

OF GREAT INTEREST

Meeting at the Residence of Dr. Colby, Founder of the Club

The discussion of the two greatest problems confronting Canada to-day, Imperialism and Immigration, made last night's meeting of the Historical Club, held at the residence of Dr. Charles W. Colby, probably the most outstanding and most interesting of this season's meetings. "Canada and the Imperial Conference" was the subject of a clear and able paper read by F. G. Ross of Arts '23, while G. Campbell Wadsworth B.A., of the Graduate School spoke eloquently upon Canada's Immigration problem. During the discussion at the close of the meeting, R. K. Jones gave a short talk summing up some of his views on the two great questions.

Doctor Colby, who twenty-nine years ago founded the Historical Club of McGill, was unable to be present, but Mrs. Colby received the members. A cold turkey dinner was served at the conclusion of the speeches, the table being tastefully decorated with the McGill colours.

F. G. Ross traced briefly, yet clearly the history of British colonial relations, dealing chiefly with the different Imperial Conferences and in particular with Canada's part in these conferences. In the earlier years, the speaker showed, there had been considerable conflict between the colonial idea of an alliance, and the Mother Country's idea of an Imperial federation. But that idea of a federation which do away with the autonomy of the separate colonies has died. At Versailles, Canada and her sister dominions ranked as equals with the United Kingdom, and at the recent conference of colonial ministers, a common understanding was reached with regard to Britain's foreign policy. "Britain's policy to-day is not a policy of one man or one government, but the policy of a commonwealth of united nations," stated the speaker in conclusion.

Wadsworth pointed out the great problems of Immigration facing Canada, paying particular attention to the north-west, in which he was especially interested. He showed how immigration into Canada from the days of the French regime has always had an artificial aspect, that it was only through government persuasion that people come to this country.

He dealt ably with the mistakes which have been made both by the people and the government; showed the wonderful work being done by the schools in giving to children of diverse races, and faiths, Canadian ideals; and concluded by stating that the people of Canada to-day were aroused to this great problem and that the government seemed now to be about to do something of value.

"Emigration" stated R. K. Jones, "rather than immigration, should be considered." He showed the appalling results of the exodus of Canada's best into the States; declared that an embargo should be placed on pulpwood and other natural products, and an attempt made to obtain British rather than American capital. Speaking on the Imperial question, Jones stated that a vigorous, definite, Imperial outlook must be established in Canada to counteract this country's drift towards annexation with the United States. In his opinion the Labour government although it rejects protection will do nothing which will alienate Canada from the Mother Country.

Van Vleet, last year's president of the club was present and addressed the meeting, referring especially to the artificial aspect of our Immigration policy.

carved in the roof. In others appear pictures of prehistoric animals, chiefly reindeer and lions, done with remarkable skill.

Before concluding his lecture Dr. Ami shifted the scene to England where he showed some slides of the Piltdown discoveries in Sussex. The skull found here resembles that of a chimpanzee. In closing, Dr. Ami showed some comparisons of the skeletons of the different erect animals and man. He also reproduced on the screen the heads of the various prehistoric men as they would probably appear in real life.

A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded Dr. Ami for his interesting lecture. Cecil T. Tankie, vice-president of the Canadian Club, acted as chairman.

U. OF M. WILL BATTLE WITH RED AND WHITE SEXTETTE FOR HONOURS TO-NIGHT

McGill Senior Six Greatly Improved Since Tilt With Varsity — "Slim" Morris Unable to Play for Remainder of Season — Both Teams Optimistic — Silver Trophy Donated by Senator Beaubien Creating Great Interest — Shaughnessy's Men Expected to Give Frenchmen a Battle Royal — Game Commences at 8.15 Sharp

The McGill senior hockey team had its final workout at the Mount Royal Arena on Monday, and tonight they are ready to take on the University of Montreal sextette and give them a real battle.

Since their last game with Varsity, the team is working much better together; their combination has improved and taking everything into consideration, when the U. of M. team steps on the ice tonight they will match their skill against a much more formidable aggregation than that which was defeated by Varsity some time ago. Coach Shaughnessy has been bolstering up the weak points in the different players and this, coupled with the experience which they received in their last game, should produce a much faster and better brand of hockey.

O'DONNELL

One of This Year's Strong Additions to the Senior Sextette

With the exception of the goalkeeper, practically the same team will take the ice against the Frenchmen as that which was unable to stem the attack of the Blue and White puck chasers. Either Routledge or Reid will guard the McGill net in the absence of Morris and Cameron, who have not yet recovered from their injuries sustained in the last game. Captain Dempsey and McMahon will pair off on the defence while the forward line will probably be composed of McGerrigle, who is a fast skater and a good checker, Matty Dineen, and Glennie who is a newcomer to the team. McNaughton and O'Donnell will very likely be used as substitutes.

From the camp of the French students comes the news that their team is out to capture the honours for the evening, and Coach Marshall is very optimistic as to the result of the game. The team has been working faithfully since their tilt with Queens and has improved considerably.

Laduness, who turned in such a good exhibition at Kingston, will probably be seen in the nets, while Poirier and Beaubien will be in front of him on the defence. From advance indications, the forward line will consist of Lepoint at centre, with Lord and Leduc supporting him on the wings. Emard and Gauthier will be the substitutes.

The French students are bringing a large quota of supporters to supply the vocal assistance for the team and it is up to the Red and White Rooters to see that they are not outdone in this respect.

It has been announced that the Rooters' band will not be in attendance, so an extra large turnout of the thundering thousand is expected. Blake Wilson and Alex. Olmsted will be the cheer leaders for the evening.

With each team out with the fixed intention of carrying off the honours, and with added interest attached to the contest by the donating of a trophy for the winners of the series, there is no doubt that both teams will put forth their best efforts with the result that a fast and exciting game should be forthcoming.

Seats are on sale at the Union and at the Arena. The game commences at 8.15 sharp, and an extra large turnout is expected.

CROCKER TO PLAY AT JAZZ TEA THURSDAY

When the cold wintry winds whistle around the corners, nipping a chap's ears and chilling him to the bone, there are few pleasanter prospects than a cosy corner in the Union Cafeteria and a cup of something warm to cheer the spirits, especially when there is some lively music to chase away the gloom.

At the last Jazz Tea the Cafeteria was filled to overflowing. This Thursday an even greater success is expected the exams are over with all their consequent worry; the Cafeteria is newly decorated and painted; and most important of all William Crocker is going to play. Need there be any further enticement? The Cafeteria will be open at five o'clock.

MANY NOT ATTENDING BOXING PRACTICES

There will be a practice of the B. W. & P. Club on Thursday between 5 and 7 o'clock.

The club executive would like to draw attention to the fact that there have been a number of slackers, and would like very much if these members would return, as the championships will take place on the 8th and 9th of February.

Last year for the first time since the war the Boxing Club showed comparatively good results, and are looking forward with great hopes to still further their success on the 8th and 9th. To do so, however, will require steady training, which for the past while has been unfortunately neglected especially by the middle and light-heavyweights. The club are at present trying to give every accommodation to the aspirants, whose ranks they sincerely hope the slackened will immediately join.

BASKETBALL GAME WITH CENTRAL "Y"

Senior Team Will Play at Drummond St.

SATURDAY NIGHT

Toronto Defeated Queen's 44-20 Last Saturday

An exhibition game has been arranged for the Senior basketball team against Central Y.M.C.A. for Saturday evening. The game will be played at the Drummond St. gymnasium.

The team has got down to strenuous work again after a brief rest following the Varsity game. No regular practices were called last week on account of the examinations but the High School gymnasium was available to those who wished to take exercise and keep in training and it was very gratifying the way the men availed themselves of this privilege.

The men were all out to a practice on Monday and Coach Van Wagner put them through a vigorous workout, particular attention being paid to the defence which was weakened by the loss of Anarion. However it is expected that this department will be up to its usual form for Saturday's game. The shooting, which has been rather weak this season, is showing great improvement due to the continual efforts of the men and the coach.

Instead of the usual practice this afternoon, a practice game has been arranged with the Y.M.H.A. at their headquarters. This game is called for 6.30 p.m.

The Central Y.M.C.A. has a strong team this year and has shown up well in the City League and should put up a good game. The McGill men are looking forward to the contest with every confidence of success.

Further plans of the team call for a game in Ottawa on February 8th, at the Y.M.C.A. It has not been definitely arranged what team will oppose the collegians, but the chances are that it will be an all-star team and if possible a return match will be played here towards the end of February.

The next intercollegiate game will be played on February 2nd, when the McGill men will travel to Toronto. It is essential that McGill win this game and at their present rate of improvement, the men should not find the task a particularly difficult one.

It is interesting to note that Toronto gained a decisive victory over Queen's last Saturday when they won at Toronto by a score of 44 to 24. As in the game here, Laidlaw, Potter and Hutchison starred.

It is likely that the senior team will make a trip to St. John, N.B. early in March. However to date, no definite plans have been arranged.

ROWING CLUB TO PLAN FOR SEASON

Coaching by Lachine Club and Members of Faculty

The McGill Rowing Club holds a meeting this afternoon at five o'clock in the Music Room of the McGill Union. The Club plans to get down to training immediately and the agenda for to-day's gathering includes the making of arrangements for practice hours on the machines at the M. A. A. Club House on Peel Street.

Already twenty five or thirty McGill men have signified their intention of turning out and taking up the work on the machines. This work is probably the best exercise in which a man could engage, and attendance will be granted to all first and second year men turning out. There are at present three or four vacancies in the Lachine crews and it is the purpose of the Lachine Club to fill these posts with likely McGill men. This is an excellent opportunity for students to become proficient in one of the greatest of sports.

Lachine Rowing Club has been hard at work since the New Year in preparation for the Olympic trials to be held next June. Varsity's champion crew have been busy since the middle of December so that it is not a moment too early for McGill to get down to hard training.

There will be plenty of efficient coaching for each McGill man turning out. The Lachine Club have already shown great interest, having made the original overtures to McGill and will do all in their power to train new men and further the sport. Several interested members of the faculty who are old oarsmen have also offered to assist in the coaching and to give the benefit of their experience.

ABOLISH FINAL EXAMINATIONS.

As a result of a conference of students and faculty at Columbia University, a movement is now actually on foot to abolish final examinations and to base marks solely on daily work in the classroom.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SWIMMING MEET

Varsity Here on Feb. 8th. & 9th. for Swimming and Polo

In anticipation of the swimming meet which is to take place here on Feb. 8th and the Polo game on the following day, the members of the McGill Swimming Club are beginning to practice assiduously and even now an appreciable improvement can be noticed since the let-up at the holiday season, and if the boys had continued the good work until the date when they oppose the Varsity outfit, their chances seem very fair of winning. If this should fortunately be the case, it will mean that we will retain the polo cup won last year, and regain the swimming cup which Varsity captured in Toronto.

In preparation for the meet several men are showing up strongly in the speed events, most notably Vernot, Bourne, Ross and Clarholm. In the diving, Hughes, Clarholm, Major and Bethel are showing up well, and with such representatives McGill need have no fear in this department of the sport.

Several men are specializing in particular strokes, with Vernot and Finlay as the most finished exponents of the breast-stroke, and Bethel displaying excellent wares in the back-stroke department.

Water Polo practice is due to start next Friday at 5.15 at the Knights of Columbus baths and it is essential that everyone turn out to benefit by the last few practices which remain before the clash with the Toronto representatives.

The Swimming Club photograph is to be taken at Notman's today at 1 p.m., and the following men are asked to be on hand:

Vernot, Ross, Clarholm, Bourne, Anson, Forsythe, Kyle, Jardine, Finlay, G. Hughes, Major, Bethel, Vlekerson, Murphy, Phipps, Nicholson, Moon, McLaren, Alexander, and Hughes.

INTER-CLASS HOCKEY ON CAMPUS RINK

Science '24 Beat Med. '27 in Slow Game

NO COMBINATION

Science '27 Won Scheduled Game Against Law '25 by Default

Science '24 greatly enhanced their chances for the inter-class hockey championship, by defeating Med '27 by the score of three to one, in a scheduled inter-class hockey game held yesterday evening on the Campus Rink.

The game was extremely slow, and with the exception of the beginning of the game, when a fast pace was set, there was never exhibited at any time, any real hockey. There was no cohesion between the players, who were content with individual rushes down the ice and shooting, for the main part, from centre ice. The game in some places resembled a game of golf, the men slamming the puck over the ice.

There was quite a snowfall during the progress of the game which retarded the players' speed, and made it well nigh impossible for them to lift the puck. At times the snow completely hid the puck and some retorting had to be indulged in before it could be brought to light.

Finlay, who was the pick of the winners, slipped one past Crocker in the first period.

The Science defence men stopped many of their opponents shots before they reached the goalie, McGill the Science goalie, made many saves by falling prone on the ice, as the shots which came to him were very low ones. Towards the close of the second period Cave shot from the boards and scored Science's second goal. Not long after Moffat ripped a rebound past the Science goalie, and scored Med's lone goal. After a few more minutes of play, time was called.

The line-up:

Science '24 — Med. '27

Goal — Crocker

Defence — Adams

McGill — McKinnon

Forward — McEvoy

McDonald — Moffat

Centre — Milligan

Fairburn

The scheduled game of the Inter-class Hockey League between Science '27 and Law '25 was awarded to the former team by default when the "lawyers" failed to put in an appearance.

want of premonition and for their further comfort be it known that another Chicken Dinner, of like quality and larger quantity, is billed for the ensuing Tuesday, when dinners for about 350 will be prepared.

To those unenlightened ones who still refuse to grant the Union Cafeteria its full meed of honour, we will dedicate the following interesting facts. Statistics for the skeptic:—At least one hundred and fifty chickens dinners were sold to those that were in time. Over four hundred patronized the Cafeteria last night, a figure in the neighbourhood of five times in excess of the usual number catered to of an evening. Mr. Honneger, the manager of the cafeteria, says that this is at least twice as large a crowd as he has seen at any one meal in his long experience at the Union. That this scheme of a "chicken dinner" at regular prices had been tried before with but scant success; and that the present success augurs well for the finances of the Union.

The recent immense improvement in the meals, service and appearance of the Cafeteria is greatly to the credit of those in charge, and the Union House Committee wishes to stress the fact that this effort to improve the service without any alteration in the prices should meet with the support of the student body as a whole. It is only fair that the students should meet the Union House Committee halfway and show their appreciation of the efforts being made by turning out in full force to do justice to the second "turkey dinner" on Tuesday next.

If the Union Cafeteria can get the support it deserves and is in future patronized in proportion to its merit, it is reasonable to predict and not by any means without the bounds of possibility that the Union will be able to take on her share in the credit side of the annual budget and relieve football from the necessity of supporting all college activities.

At least, gentle reader, be advised to your own advantage and be on hand on Tuesday next, between 6 and 7 p.m. to take advantage of this renewed offer.

The Seniors smoke Players of course—imagine a Senior smoking anything but the finest.

The Juniors smoke Players—they'll be Seniors next year.

The Sophomores smoke Players—they're a year ahead of the Freshmen.

The Freshmen smoke Players—they want to be "regular fellows."

Alabama Waffles

THIS afternoon I introduce to you another dish—hot crispy "Alabama Waffles" served with butter and golden maple syrup. As the specialty of the Palm Garden in the Hotel Biltmore, New York, this dish is perhaps known to many of you. But although otherwise identical, the Union Cafeteria price for "Alabama Waffles" will be only 15 cents. Order them for Afternoon Tea, Breakfast or Dinner. I am featuring them for Afternoon Tea.

To-morrow

At noon I shall serve a Turkey Luncheon for 45 cents.

And for the Jazz Tea in the afternoon, Crocker's Orchestra will play.
